1914 - '15.

The story of the mobilization which was ordered August 2, 1914, or of the war which began early in November, will not be related here. In spite of inevitable difficulties involved in the call to arms of eight teachers, a number of employees, and many students, every lesson has been taught according to program and according to calendar except in the department of Russian. Student attendance is just about half what it was last year, though a good proportion of each class is on the ground. The affiliated Theological Seminary has been compelled to suspend its instruction for the most part. The year however is progressing exceedingly well for the students in attendance; discipline is comparatively easy; no student has been dropped for conduct. The newly arranged museum, the newly opened reading room and library, the new supply of pure drinking water from a deep well, are individual features of great value and marked progress. It is expected that the fine new "Kennedy Home" for the students under fifteen years of age, and the adjacent house for the family of the superintendent, will be occupied in April. These new premises are connected with the main campus by a tunnel under the street.

TRUSTEES.

The American missionaries resident in Marsovan are the trustees of the school and control all important decisions in regard to it.

GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS.

The school premises are within the same enclosure with the missionary residences and other American institutions, occupying the southern part of this enclosure, where the school enjoys many advantages incident to nearness to these institutions and yet is entirely apart from them. The gardens and playgrounds cover about $4\frac{1}{2}$ acres, on which also stand Fritcher Hall, first occupied in 1894 and now devoted to the Preparatory Department, with accommodations for 150 students; South Hall, which is now the home of the High School, with accommodations for 70; the King Memorial School for the Deaf, the Tracy Kindergarten, and a building for laundry purposes. The Domestic Science kitchen and dressmakers' room are in South Hall.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The course of study is given in full in another place. During preparatory years all subjects except English and Fourth Form Arithmetic are studied in the vernaculars. During the last four years all work in Mathematics, Science, and History is done through English. Special attention is given to the development of an accurate and pure use of the pupil's vernacular, both in speech and writing. In the Turkish course the student acquires a reading and writing knowledge of the language in the Arabic character. The study of English gives to the pupil a free conversational use of the language, ability to write it, and to read English books with ease. French is offered as an elective.

For one entering the First Form eight years are required to complete the course.

MUSIC.

The Music Department offers excellent opportunities for training in singing and in piano and organ playing. Lessons in reading music, and chorus singing are given throughout the course. Private lessons on the organ and piano may be taken by a student of any class. These lessons are not included in the curriculum; an extra charge is made for them.

PRACTICAL TRAINING.

The school is putting increasing emphasis on the training of girls for efficiency in the practical things of life. All pupils are required to pass through a rigid course in plain sewing, which is followed by the making of simple garments. In the last two years dress-making, including cutting and fitting, is taught. Following the plain sewing are courses in embroidery and fine needlework, where good progress is made both in oriental work and also in that introduced from Europe and America. The department of Domestic Science is giving practical training which will minister to more sanitary housekeeping and comfort in many homes.

A trained nurse gives lessons on the care of the health. With the younger girls these lessons are simple and elementary, but practical. The older pupils are taught the causes of the prevalent diseases of the country, the means of preventing their spread, and the treatment of the diseases; they also have an elementary course in nursing.

RELIGIOUS ADVANTAGES.

The school is a Christian institution founded for the purpose of giving a Christian education to those who attend it. The study of the Bible holds an important place throughout the entire course. All attend Sunday school, where the International Lessons are studied. All boarding pupils attend the Sunday preaching services, which are held in three languages in order to meet the needs of all. A strong Young Women's Christian Association and two Junior Christian Endeavor Societies carry on the organized Christian activity of the school. The personal influence of Christian teachers and students is strong and helpful to those of less experience. The importance of personal Christian character and life is constantly emphasized.

SOCIAL ADVANTAGES.

All boarding pupils live in the school buildings, the older girls in South Hall and those of the Preparatory Department in Fritcher Hall. All dine together in the large double dining room of Fritcher Hall. Each house has its own study hall, recitation rooms, library, dormitories, students' sitting room, and teachers' rooms. The family life where teachers and pupils are in constant intercourse is a delightful feature of the school. The older pupils enjoy the privileges of the weekly lectures which are given in the college during the winter months. Members of the Senior and Junior classes are admitted to membership in the Anatolia Archeological Club and Educational Association. Social occasions in the school, college, and in the homes of missionaries and teachers are a source of enjoyment.

CONDITIONS OF ADMISSION.

For admission to the First Form the candidate should be able to read and write her own vernacular freely, and should be prepared to pass an examination in Arithmetic on addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. Satisfactory testimonials in regard to character are required before a pupil is received. For boarding pupils, twelve years is the age limit.

To enter an advanced class the candidate is required to pass examinations on the work of the class preceding the one to which she seeks admission.

Entrance examinations are held on the Monday and Tuesday preceding the opening of the first semester. It is important that application for admission should be made early.

NECESSARY OUTFIT.

Clothing should be simple and serviceable. Provision should be made for both warm and cold weather. Each girl should have not less than three suits of under clothing. Rubber overshoes are a necessity. Each girl should bring a trunk, mattress, bedding and towels. All articles that pass through the laundry should be clearly marked with the owner's name. The dormitories are furnished with bedsteads and closets for all.

KING SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

King School is in the fifth year of its work for the deaf children of Turkey. During these years there have been twenty four different children under instruction. The present enrollment is eighteen.

In teaching, the oral method is used, the pupils being taught not only to read and write but also to speak, and to understand speech by reading the lips. Simple number work is followed by Arithmetic lessons in which the children make excellent progress. Geography is introduced later. As soon as pupils have a sufficient use of language to allow it, they will be given work in other branches. From the beginning of their life in the school, part of each day is given to manual training. Girls learn to do house-work, sewing, fine needlework and weaving: each boy is taught a trade.

Pupils are received when they are from seven to nine years of age. In exceptional cases older children may be received, but there is great advantage to the child in beginning at the earlier age. The annual charge for board and tuition is twelve liras.

King School occupies a large building with attractive garden and play grounds adjoining the other premises of Anatolia Girls' School.
