ORGANIZATION.

St. Paul's Institute, located in Tarsus, Asia Minor, was founded by the late Elliott F. Shepard, of New York. It was incorporated in March, 1887, under the laws of the State of New York, in the United States of America. Since then the Institute has been under a Board of Trustees in New York City.

In November, 1903, the school was formally transferred to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and is now under the control of the Prudential Committee of that Board.

Work was begun in the fall of 1888, with two teachers and eight pupils. The first class was graduated in 1893. The object of the school is to give the blessings of a Christian education to the young men of these regions, and thus aid in the extension of the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Tarsus, on the river Cydnus, is eighteen miles from Mersine, the port of Cilicia, and is connected by rail with both Mersine and Adana. The buildings are situated on high ground in the outskirts of the city, and command a fine view of the plain and of the long line of the snow-covered Taurus mountains.

The Cilician Gates, the famous Pass through the Taurus, brings the interior of Asia Minor into direct communication with Tarsus. This and the fact that there is no other College of the American Board for young men within less than six days' journey make the situation of Tarsus for a school like this especially favorable.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

St. Paul's Institute has two departments:

The Preparatory Department, covering a period of five years, gives a thorough elementary training, and prepares the students to enter the regular college course.

The Collegiate Department, also covering a period of five years, gives a liberal education in language and literature, mathematics, natural science, history, and philosophy.

Its graduates are fitted to enter either the Theological Seminary, the Schools of Medicine and Pharmacy, or the work of teaching in the schools of the country.

ADMISSION.

Without special vote of the Faculty, no boy will be received as a boarder who is under fourteen years of age. Candidates for admission must bring certificates of their good moral character. Candidates for advanced standing must pass examinations in all the studies that have been pursued by the class they wish to enter.

EXPENSES.

There are two tables, and expenses vary accordingly. Boys eating at the special table pay sixteen Turkish pounds a year, exclusive of vacations, for board, tuition, fuel, light, and a place in the dormitory. Those eating at the common table pay ten Turkish pounds. Instrumental music is extra. Boys at the special table must bring their own forks, spoons, napkins, and rings; and each boarder is required to furnish his own bedding, an umbrella, and towels. The students pay for their own washing. Books are rented at a reasonable rate to those unable to buy.

BENEFICIARIES AND INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT.

In accordance with the express wish of our Founder, and the needs of the country, a limited number of promising boys are assisted in meeting their expenses. In return for this help, they are expected to spend a certain number of hours each day in manual labor.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The school-year is divided into three equal terms. Two vacations of ten days each are given at the Oriental Christmas and Easter.

LANGUAGES.

Thorough instruction is given in five languages, English, French, Turkish, Armenian, and Greek; each student takes four of these, the Armenian and Greek being mutually exclusive. In the College Department, as far as possible, the language of instruction and conversation is English.

HEALTH.

The Institute is situated on a fine slope just outside the city, swept by fresh breezes from sea and mountain. There is a good supply of fresh water on the premises, brought in iron pipes from the Cydnus.

Gymnastic exercises is compulsory. A Field-day is held once a year, when prizes are given for excellence in gymnastics and athletics. The health of the students is good. It is a cause for thankfulness that since the school was opened, in 1888, no student has died here in term-time.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Each day's work is opened with prayer, singing, and reading of the Scriptures; and closed in the afternoon with singing. Regular lessons in the Bible are given to each class every morning after prayers. The weekly prayer-meeting is held on Wednesday evening. On the Lord's Day there is Sabbath-school in the morning, a preaching service in the church in the afternoon, and a prayer-meeting in the evening, conducted by members of the Y.M.C.A.

Besides these services, there are frequent religious addresses given by the President and others.

The Y.M.C.A. of the Institute is a strong society, whose influence for good is felt throughout the school. It owns the beginnings of a good library, to which the members will be glad to receive additions in the way of books in various languages.

MUSIC.

Instruction in singing by note is a regular part of the curriculum. Those who wish are taught for a small fee to play on various instruments. The orchestra of about twenty pieces is conducted by a competent teacher, and plays excellent selections every week-day afternoon except Saturday. The instruments have been nearly paid for by concerts given from time to time. We believe with Milton that the influence of good music is essential in the higher training of young men.

LITERARY WORK AND DECLAMATIONS.

Essays in the various languages taught in the school are required from time to time. Many of these essays are collected in periodical form once in two weeks, and after being read by those who wish, are bound and laid up in the library. Debates are held frequently, on Saturday evenings. Declamations in English, French, Turkish, Armenian, and Greek, are given every Saturday forenoon during two terms of the year. One of Shakspeare's Plays is usually presented every May.

BUILDINGS.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, the main building and three acres of land were bought for the Institute in 1895. In this building the missionaries live, and fifty students sleep. It contains also the College school-room, two recitation-rooms, a dining-room, and two kitchens. There are three smaller buildings used mainly as dormitories; under one of them is the Academy school-room, and under another some very inadequate recitation-rooms.

The Institute needs most urgently a residence for the foreign teachers, and a large building containing assembly-hall, laboratories, recitation-rooms, library and collections.

LIBRARY.

A well-selected library of about three thousand volumes was presented to the Institute some years ago by the President and his wife. It is rich especially in aids to the study of the Bible, Church History, Theology, Secular History, and English Literature. Additions to it will be thankfully received. Our advanced students make great use of it. A few good periodicals in five languages are taken, and are eagerly read by the boys.

PRIZES.

Prizes are offered each year for excellence in Gymnastics, Athletics, Mathematics, Declamations, and Essays. The Alumni Prize, this year, is for the best Essay by a Senior or a Junior on "Scientific Agriculture." These prizes will be given at the end of May.

EXAMINATIONS, GRADE, DIPLOMA.

Three regular written examinations are held each year. The grade of a student depends on his average daily mark and his examination mark. The highest mark given is 100; the passing mark is 70. If a student falls below 70 in three lessons he must go back a year; the same result follows if within three months he does not remove by a second examination a condition imposed by a former one.

Students who complete the course in a satisfactory manner receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Certificates are given to boys who finish their course in the Academy.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline is that of a Christian home. The missionaries and several teachers live in the buildings with the boys, and eat with them. Thus constant oversight is exercised. The use of tobacco and intoxicants, bad language, and conduct prejudicial to good morals are prohibited. It is expected that every student will behave as a Christian gentleman. The Lord's Day is observed in a Christian manner; visits, except in cases of sickness, are not made or received on that day. Young men who show little aptitude for study, or who evidently are not in harmony with the spirit of the School are not allowed to remain.
